What is Irony and What is Sarcasm?

Irony

Sarcasm

Irony VS Sarcasm

irony: when the opposite outcome of what you expect happens

sarcasm: witty mockery

Irony

- The one using irony usually does not mean the words literally.

Sarcasm

- Sarcasm does not have any other purpose than causing embarrassment and insult.

Irony example: blind leading the blind

Sarcasm

- Sarcasm- a sharply ironical taunt; sneering or cutting remark: a review full of sarcasms.
- Examples:
 - After walking into the classroom of misbehaving students, the teacher thanks them for their respect and excellent behavior while she was out of the room.
 - You are not the brightest star in the sky now, are you?
 - Yes, that's a great example of exactly what not to do in the future.
 - I'm not naming any names, but people like Timmy should really think before they speak.

Irony

- Irony- the difference between what you expect to happen and what actually does happen
- Examples:
 - The Titanic was promoted as being 100% unsinkable; but, in 1912 the ship sank on its maiden voyage.
 - In Romeo and Juliet by William Shakespeare Romeo finds Juliet in a drugged state and he thinks she is dead. He kills himself. When Juliet wakes up she finds Romeo dead and kills herself.
 - A man who is a traffic cop gets his license suspended for unpaid parking tickets.

Sarcasm

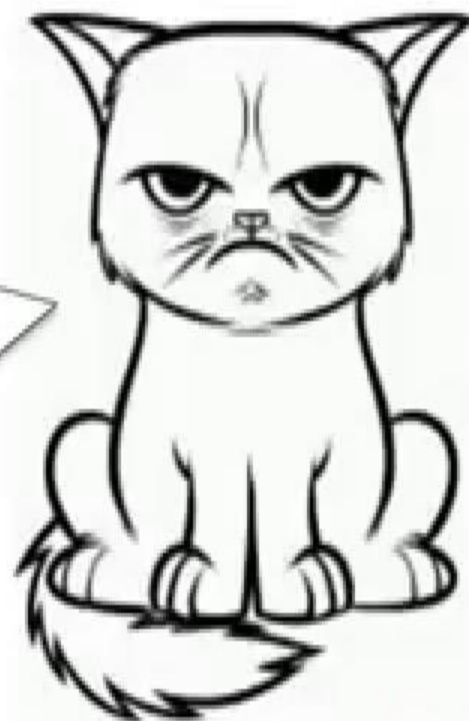

Sarcasm involves saying the opposite of what you think or feel.

For example, if someone gets in a car accident, she may say,
“Well, today must be my lucky day!”

Sarcasm designed to insult or harm is not irony.

Sarcasm designed to call attention to something using a contradiction is irony.

You call this education?

A Scottish Fold cat with grey and white stripes is lying on its back on a peach-colored surface. The cat has its characteristic folded ears and is looking directly at the camera with yellow eyes. A semi-transparent white rectangular box is centered over the cat's chest, containing two lines of text in a black serif font.

Not everyone has good taste.”

Parade

Sarcasm Example:

The food service of the restaurant was just brilliant. The plate was cold and so was the food.

Not to mention that the food was extremely bland and tasteless.

SATIRE

SARCASM

Satire exposes the follies and weaknesses of the society.

Satire is a form of constructive criticism

Satire creates humor and makes people laugh.

Satire is directed at a larger audience.

Satire is a literary genre, and is used in literature.

Sarcasm mocks or conveys contempt.

Sarcasm is often insult veiled in the form of praise.

Sarcasm insults people and makes them upset, hurt.

Sarcasm is directed at a smaller audience.

Sarcasm is more used in verbal conversations.

Sarcasm vs. verbal irony

- The terms sarcasm and irony are often used interchangeably, but there is a semantic difference.
- Sarcasm is meant to insult or cause harm.
- Ex.
 - “Great, I forgot my umbrella” is ironic.
 - “You call this a cup of coffee?” is sarcastic.

IRONY

“Lovely weather out today.”

“Great choice for an umbrella.”
