Directions (1-13) : Passage.

In July 1920 barely eight months after his arrival in England. Subhash Chandra Bose appeared in the Civil Service Examination and passed it with distinction. But the prospect of being a member of the bureaucracy did not make him happy. He felt that the first step towards equipping oneself for public service was to sacrifice all worldly interest. Much against the wishes of his father Subhash resigned from the I.C.S. and returned to India in July 1920. Here he became Deshbandu's most promising recruit. When C.R. Das became the chief organizer of the boycott of the visit of Prince of Wales. Subhash was by his side. The hartal in Calcutta was a spectacular success and both the guru and sishya found themselves in jail. This was Subha's first incarceration, the first of a total of eleven. Later, when C.R. Das was elected Mayor of Calcutta, Subhash was appointed Chief Executive Officer. While holding this post, he was arrested in a case of conspiracy and was lodged without trial in Mandalay jail for two and a half years. After release from jail, he became President of the Bengal Pradesh Congress Committee and once again resumed his political activities.

Subhash became President of the All India Youth Congress. Central Officer Commanding of the Congress Volunteer Corps, and in 1928 was the co-founder, with Jawaharlal Nehru of the Left Wing of the Congress Party. He also became President of the All India Trade Union Congress in 1931. His dynamism was a source of inspiration for the trade unionists in the struggle for their rights as well as for India's freedom. In 1938, he was elected President of the Indian National Congress at the Haripura Session. This was the time when Congress ministries were in office in seven states under the scheme of Provincial Autonomy granted under the Government of India Act of 1935. He emphasised on the revolutionary potential of the Congress ministries in the presidential address. He was re-elected Congress President the following year at Tripuri, defeating the veteran, Dr. Pattabhi Sitaramayya, though the latter enjoyed Gandhiji's support.
